UK Outlook for Thursday 14 Oct 2021 to Saturday 23 Oct 2021:
A cloudy and windy start to this period across the far north with outbreaks of rain, whilst elsewhere remains largely dry with sunny spells, with the best of these to the south and east. High pressure and mostly dry conditions are likely to then dominate the UK for much of the period, with only occasional spells of rain likely in the north and west at times. Overnight fog will continue to be a feature of the weather with light winds. Overall, temperatures are likely to be around or slightly above average for the time of year, although with a possibility of some frost at night. A change to more unsettled conditions in all regions may get underway in the second half of the period.
